

Park Stake. We did a variety of Easter music and Greg Osborn gave an Easter message. It was a beautiful way to celebrate the Easter season--especially since we weren't able to have Easter programs in church today. Wunnerful, wunnerful.

Well, we're all moved out of our kitchen, ready to have the workers begin gutting it to put in all new cabinets, appliances and floors. Should take six weeks. We put a card table, toaster--and we hope to put our old microwave in the computer room (Greg's room)--so we can eat some meals at home. The refrigerator is sitting in our hallway, which you have to turn sideways to get by. Ugly, ugly.

Hope you all had a good day.

Love, love, Liz
